* Quick Note: Usually when I play this song I'll capo the first fret which *

* will kick the pitch up to the point where it will match the CD version *

* almost perfectly. And what I have tabbed for the intro. isn't exactly right* * but it still sounds reasonably good. I would be gratefull if someone could *

* post the correct version of the intro. and the solo. *

Am-D-Dm-Am ---Ending Rhythum

And thats it. It is a really simple song to play if you just sit down, listen to the song and get the feel for it. You can almost dupe the solo in the instrumental by arpeggiating the Am, D, and Dm chords. I believe Chris only strums the chord once but he has a whole backing band with him. If you are playing the song solo without anyone else strum the shords as a rhythum. It sonds great just by itself! If you have any corrections, comments, additons, or you happen to figure out the correct version of the intro. or the solo let me know: Senevirm@datatek.com..... Chris Isaak 95 Dig It!
